Introduction:

Libraries are the carriers of civilization. Without books, history is silent, literature dumb, science crippled, thought and speculation at a standstill. Without libraries, the development of civilization would have been impossible; they are the engines of change. Management of library is the basic and core activity which helps the academic community in identifying and accessing knowledge resource in a university. Living in an age of information explosion, libraries have to transform themselves into organization that supports the values of quality and quality management. This also means that Libraries should build organization that support learning. By concentrating on their ability to learn and create solution, the learning organization “is continually enhancing its capacity to create its future”.

A changing user population, technology enhancement, transformation of scholarly communication system, digital libraries and new approaches to planning and assessment throughout the library are propelling the new environment. It has now become inevitable for libraries to redefine their vision, mission, values, structure and systems support behavior that is performance and learning focused. Success of an academic library is increasingly dependent on the most effective utilization and strategic management of new technologies in libraries. To understand the challenges and opportunities of digital era, Pt. Sundarlal Sharma Library in association with SoS in Library and Information Science, PRSU, Raipur will organize NCRAL, a three days national conference from 12th to 14th Feb. 2014 for Academic Library & Information Professionals.
